Transfer Market

A transfer window is a specific period of time during which professional football clubs can buy, sell or loan players from/to other clubs. The transfer window is a regulated period of time where the clubs can negotiate and finalize the transfers of players. Transfer windows typically last for several weeks, and there are usually two transfer windows per year for each league, one during the mid-season break (usually in January) and the other at the end of the season (usually in the summer).

During the transfer window, clubs can strengthen their squads by signing new players, replacing underperforming or injured players or by selling players to generate revenue. The transfer window is also an opportunity for players to move to other clubs to seek better playing opportunities, improved contracts, or a change of scenery. The transfer window provides a mechanism for clubs to adjust their squads and strengthen their chances of success in domestic and international competitions. The transfer window is regulated by governing bodies such as FIFA, UEFA and national football

Transfer Market (2000–2018)

BUNDESLIGA

€7,535,220,000

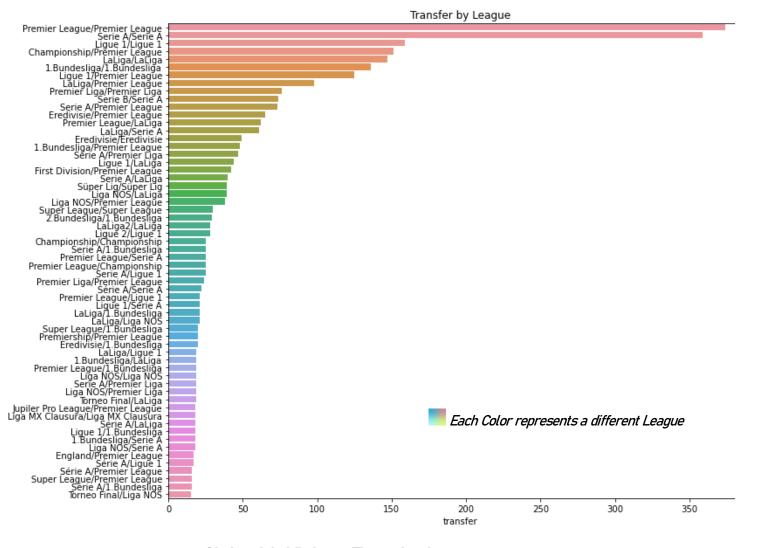

€6,680,360,000

€3,682,720,000

€24,390,000

€115,000,000

€117,000,000

Club with Highest Transfer Income

€1.345 Billion

There is a total of 4700 transaction from 2000-2018

Premier League has the most transaction at 1256 which consist of 27% of the total transaction

Most expensive transfer fee recorded during the time is Neymar at €222,000,000 by Paris Saint-Germain

Most bought position is Centre-Forward at 1218 which consist of 26 % of the positions

Premier League have spent €14,495,400,000 in transfer window from 2000–2018

End